Decision in Fernschild Case

Good afternoon,

Below is a link to a video, which the Department of Motor Vehicles is requesting that you show to your troopers/officers to address the Appellate Court's recent decision in the Fernschild case. See attached. The court's decision has greatly increased the number of officer's subpoenaed into our hearings. Hopefully, this video will help clarify and give guidance to what kind of information is necessary for DMV refusal cases.

Subject: Next CJPAC Meeting Dec. 28 - 9am

Good Morning CJPAC Members,

Recently there has been some discussion in the media and elsewhere about auto thefts, especially those involving juveniles. The question has been raised as to whether there is a relationship between recent statutory changes in juvenile court procedures and the apparent increase in reported auto thefts and related incidents.

The Division of Criminal Justice has suggested that this issue be discussed in a comprehensive way at JJPOC. I believe CJPAC should also consider this question and evaluate how best to respond.

The suggested relevant topics are:

- * Restrictions on post-arrest and pretrial detention of juveniles.
- * The lack of meaningful sanctions that juvenile courts can impose, including the closing of the Juvenile Training School.
- * Changes that make it almost impossible to transfer serious juvenile cases to the adult court where there can be a meaningful response.

In order to better understand recent developments, it would be helpful if we could assemble and present data on:

- 1) auto theft trends generally;
 - 2) pretrial detention of juveniles;
 - 3) commitments to DCF generally and to CJTS specifically;
 - 4) transfers from juvenile to adult court and, finally,
 - 5) sanctions imposed following transfers to adult court with specific reference to auto theft.

Ideally, these data should make reference to years before and after the various changes in juvenile laws and procedures, if possible.

With that in mind, I invite the Division of Criminal Justice, the Court Support Services Division within the Judicial Branch, and any other member of CJPAC to assemble the data at its disposal to help us better understand the causes and dimensions of the problem, and to be prepared to share and discuss these findings and any policy recommendations at our December meeting on Thursday, December 28 at 9:00 am.?

Please let me know if you have any questions or suggestions.
